

COLLABORATING TO CREATE CHANGE

Drive meaningful change in suicide prevention

Collaborating to Create Change is a powerful workshop for people with lived experience of suicide who are interested in developing the skills required to be an effective lived experience advocate or representative.

This workshop explores the opportunities and challenges that comes with driving system reform including working collaboratively with a diverse range of stakeholders , understanding power imbalances and navigating power dynamics, and harnessing the individual and collective strengths of the lived experience of suicide movement to create systems change.

When considering this opportunity, please read 'Readiness to be Involved in Suicide Prevention' to support you to make an informed decision.
